

The Hundred Million Flowers of Cosmos Park

Goshogaichi-cho/Egami-cho, Fukui City

Begun with a mere handful of blossoms, now over 100 million cosmos flowers burst into bloom, heralding the coming of fall and symbolizing the labors of those that made it.

Cosmos Park

The Cosmos Park of Fukui City's Miya no Shita district covers an area of approximately 17.5 hectares (the size of 10 Tokyo Domes) and boasts 100 million blossoms of the park's featured flower. The site of cosmos swaying in the breeze grants visitors a soothing view and provides a relaxing locale.

The park's grounds were originally fallow land on which locals planted cosmos. Every year the number grew until it reached it

Tractor ride through the park's grounds

Every year from early September to mid-October, the park comes to life during its Cosmos Festival. Staffed by local volunteers, its events range from tractor rides to fresh vegetable markets. This event serves to facilitate ties between locals and visitors coming to see the festival, while deepening those between residents themselves.
